Ephraim feedeth on wind. --Hos. xii. : l. I Prize this hour too highly to waste a minute of it in denouncing the saloon or discussing the moral or economic quality of license laws. The Methodist Church is happily beyond that, and if she will now simply stand by the plain, peremptory logic of her own utterances, the long game of chess between the church and the saloon is near the finish, for the pawns are off the board, the rooks, knights, bishops have their ultimate bearings, and the white queen has the red king checkmate now, if she will but say the word; maneuvers are at an end; the rest is victory or perfidy. I do not care to speak of perfidy, nor need to, except to say that the peril of the church is dawdling, and that, with all her light,...
