There have been few methods of execution more excruciatingly painful than crucifixion, and the Romans mastered it. By design, death on a cross was not quick. Soldiers would first whip the victim with a scourge and then force him to carry his own crossbeam to the execution site. Once suspended on a cross, the hours in a strained position took a toll, causing difficulty in breathing and often resulting in suffocation. Some victims would hang alive for days, finally succumbing to death as a welcome relief. It wasn't until AD 337 that crucifixion was banned in Rome by the first Christian emperor, Constantine the Great. But by then thousands had been tortured on a cross--including one named Jesus Christ. Interestingly, it was out of reverence for this very Jesus that Constantine outlawed this method of execution three centuries later. When Jesus was crucified he voluntarily took the guilt of your sins and mine to the cross with him. As death drew near, the Son of God summoned all of his human strength and said, It is finished! What did that mean? It is finished! meant that no more was there a need for bloodshed. Never again would innocent lambs have to be sacrificed to atone for sins, as had been done in Old Testament times. The blood flow was finished. Our salvation had been paid for in full! A famous preacher of yesteryear explained it in this fashion: as Jesus's blood--the blood of God--coursed down the crude Roman cross and into the sand, it was as if the sand whispered to a blade of grass, It is finished! The blade of grass leaned toward a tree and said,...
