Not illustrated. 1862 Excerpt: . examination of New England, the fact that so large a proportion of places, famed for giving relief to consumptives, have dry soils, is, to use the mildest term, a peculiar coincidence. I do not think, moreover, that the subject has ever been fairly investigated with reference to the influence of soil-moisture on the prevalence of consumption, as I have investigated it in these researches. In confirmation of this assertion, I would remark, that although I brought the subject (during a visit to Europe in 1859), as fully as I could before men of experience in vital statistics in England, and on the continent, I never found but one person who, practically, could give any evidence on the subject. This gentleman was a physician in the highlands of Scotland, whose name, I regret, has escaped me. He had practised in two valleys, one of which has...
