Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Practical Hotel Housekeeper When a housekeeper takes charge of a house her first duty is to find out the number of rooms that are used as guest chambers, and next the number of beds, as it sometimes happens that there are more beds than there are rooms. The Inventory. Then the housekeeper takes her book in hand and makes an inventory of every article in each room. There should be in every sleeping guest room, the following necessary articles on every wash-stand (whether it is a stationary, having hot and cold water, or an ordinary wash-stand, with common wash bowl and pitcher, it matters not) - each should have one soap dish; one tooth mug or glass for that purpose: one glass for drinking water; a perforated vase or long dish for holding the tooth and nail brush, (a vessel of some kind for that purpose is indispensable.) The glasses should be the plain, low, flat glasses, not tumblers, as they are apt to fall and break- Then one slop-jar. with a cover; also one chamber, with a cover. It is a disgrace to the housekeeper to have a chambermaid work for her, who knows she has in her division a room that has either one of those vessels without a cover. When one of those covers are either lost or broken she should report to the housekeeper, and have it replaced. The next article is one cuspidor, and one match-safe. If the new housekeeper finds any of those articles missing she jots them down in her book and. as soon as she possibly can, she replaces the missing articles. The next step is...
